'Debug' on the Tweed in New South Wales!

Fast 'Bug Camping on the Tweed

Chris Spooner writes: "We took 'Debug' down to the Tweed River, just over the NSW border for a camping trip. There was a Wanderer 10 already on the water - an American plastic traditional looking sailing dinghy - and we sailed circles around it in the light airs. These Firebugs are not slouches! The sandy beach lends itself to sailing far more than the bricked lake at home. I can see us doing more of that sort of thing. The boat raised a lot of interest and I might have to get into the habit of carrying some brochures to give out."

Firebug in hot water on Lake Tarawera!

Sailing on BOILING Water???

Well perhaps not - that would be a silly thing to do! What would happen if you fell in? Boiled to death!! So, no it look's like its boiling but it isn't really - just warm on a cool morning to result in a steamy sail for these sailors camping at Hot Water Beach on Lake Tarawera near Rotorua in NZ. The Lake Tarawera Ratepayers Assoc. Sail Training Group had a fun camping/sailing weekend on the lake. A letter from Mr Ian Thorpe describes the trip: "At the sail and camp weekend the trainees sailed all our small boats across Lake Tarawera - a distance of some 12 kilometers - escorted by three families in trailer yachts and two in power boats. No sooner had the fleet arrived at Hot Water Beach than the youngsters all wanted to go local sailing - perhaps the chore of the erection of tents helped their decision. It was a grand day and all enjoyed the hot pools and general fun in excellent weather. On the Sunday morning the local sailing resumed in very light airs but in water so warm that boats sailed in and out of mist clouds. The homeward journey in convoy began well but the main body of the lake was devoid of wind and so most boats accepted a tow home."

Mum's 'Bug Launched at Last

Karen William's boat was launched at Clark's Beach Yacht Club, with a 25 knot south-wester and an outgoing tide. "It was a great ride. Gybing several times around the bottom mark we never capsized. The little craft manoevered well, in the strong breeze and heavy seas. An exhilarating feeling to be sailing a boat I had built myself!"

Mum's Boatbuilding Reflections

--Racking my brains over how to construct each step then remembering to read the plans for that vital piece of information. A new experience for a draughtsperson and one I have cursed builders for not doing.

--Going on an imaginary expedition around the world with an atlas as our chart, a 4 year old son as Captain and collecting a variety of soft toys for each compartment on the way.

--Multi-tasking to the max. Bake scones, do the washing, complete tech assignment and BUILD A BOAT!!

Flierbugs on Lake Mahinapua

Five Firebugs race sailed in the local Hokitika Club's annual regatta on NZ's West Coast. Tom Arthur reports: "We sailed 6 shortish races in the regatta, approximately 40 minutes each, and were in a mixed fleet of Starlings, Sunbursts, Optimists and the odd sailing dinghy. I am pleased to report that in each race a 'Bug was first across the line.'"

The lake is a popular tourist stop and while the boats were on the beach a bus load of Japanese turned up and caused great merriment by asking if these were Radio Controlled yachts!! Mahinapua is a lovely place to sail - anyone interested in a freshwater 'bug regatta on the lake next summer should contact Ray Obrien or Tom Arthur.

Visitor Sails in From the South

Firebug HQ recently enjoyed a visit by Gordon Caley from the Otago Yacht Club in Dunedin. The OYC is to be running the South Island Firebug Champs this summer. Gordon, an experienced offshore sailor and owner of a deep sea 30 footer sailed into Auckland on a large ketch owned by friends. A snap decision whilst enjoying a farewell get together had him join the crew and spend two and a half weeks sailing up the coast. One of those weeks were spent riding out a gale on anchor in Hicks Bay near East Cape. Gordon says, "We're looking forward to having a great weekend with the Firebug Champs during the summer. Date: probably February 15 - 16th. All welcome!
